The timelessness and universality of art works exist because they inspire and uplift the human heart and mind. For artists who create such works, painting is a necessity—not an end in itself but a vehicle for sharing a greater truth that embraces all life. Such works not meant to please, but rather to move people toward greater wisdom and understanding.

This exhibit portrays the manifestation of good and evil in the context of a modern human atrocity: the brutal persecution against Falun Gong led by the Chinese Communist dictator. These paintings remind the world that, when persecution meets the principle of Truthfulness – Compassion – Tolerance, ordinary people become extraordinary. Falun Dafa practitioners have met the persecution with uncompromising courage, responding to hatred, inhuman torture, and killing with a spirit of great compassion and forbearance, to uphold justice, freedom, dignity and humanity.

All of the paintings are original works, created by a group of accomplished artists. Some personally experienced the torture depicted, and one is still in jail. Such painful human memories have been transformed into the basis for artistic expression.
